The SWS Almost-Weekly Newsletter

Important notes

FROLICS IS HERE?

SWS artists, performers, and funny people, this is the moment! Stuck on what to do? On the fence about whether to perform or not? Reach out to your friends in the community! This is a perfect opportunity to step out of your comfort zone and make some beautiful memories. If you want to perform, reach out to Milly or Tali! Let's make this an awesome night! We have to reschedule our March 24th date because of an NHS event. Stay tuned for our new date!

COMMONS

Guys! The Commons is one of the beautiful privileges we get to have as SWS students! (We just got a new fridge too!) We need to individually take responsibility for the cleanliness and well-being of the space, while also being mindful that the space is used by many. Don't be gross: clean up after yourself, throw trash in the trash, wipe down your seat after you eat, don't leave the space dirtier than you found it. Also be mindful of the fact that it is a community space! Be mindful of the space you are taking up, what you're saying, what you are writing, and what you're doing. Be respectful guys!

Upcoming

Frolics - March 24th
(Thursday) 6:30 PM

Community!

Many SWS'ers have expressed feeling disconnected from the community. Let's work to rebuild it! Keira mentioned taking advantage of the many board games in the Commons! Another idea was to make use of the mailboxes on the fourth floor. Both of these are great ways to get to know people! Also, don't be afraid to just strike up a conversation! Wave at people and actively seek to create bonds with one another! People can be intimidating and conversation can be daunting, but a lot of kids are just as eager to get to know others!

WHAT'S UP ON THE 4TH FLOOR?

We had another spectacular Lounge Show on the fifteenth! The night was full of vibrant energy and dazzling performances, with Caelum as the emcee for the night! Here are the highlights:

A fantastic rendition of "Welcome to the Internet" by Bo Burnham, performed by SWS' very own Joe Viola! Joe's dramatic act captivated the audience with his uncanny ability to capture the theatrics of Bo Burnham himself! If you never miss a lounge show, there's actually a 100% guarantee that you will also never miss a Bo performance by Joe! Trust the science!

John's electrifying performance of "Girls Just Want To Have Fun" by Cyndi Lauper had the whole room clapping and dancing along! The true star of the show though, of course, was John's beautiful pink wig: Nancy!

The main feature of the night: Noah's original piece: "Booty So Flat," was outstanding! Noah's anthem properly celebrated having a flat ass with the aid of his featuring dancers: John, Sarah, Caelum, and Emma. Though, by the end of the performance, we were all back up dancers. Fantastic Job Noah!

The night mellowed out with an incredible performance from Redberry with Nick on the bass, Madhav on the electric guitar, and Daniel on the drums. Per usual, they were phenomenal with Madhav's incredible solo on the electric!

The lounge show came to a close with an impromptu karaoke session that had the whole room singing and dancing along to hits like "Teenage Dream", "Call me Maybe", and "We Don't Talk About Bruno"!
